The Upcoming 2011 APSA-ACPS Related Group Panel

International Symposium and 24th Annual Meeting

1) Economic Openness and Territorial Politics in China (Aug. 30, 2010) by Yumin Sheng
2) Accepting Authoritarianism: State-Society Relations in China’s Reform Era (Mar. 8, 2010) by Jane Duckett
4) Paths to Development in Asia: South Korea, Vietnam, China, and Indonesia (Mar. 22, 2010) by Victor Zheng
6) China’s Emerging Middle Class: Beyond Economic Transformation (Nov. 12, 2010) by Victor Zheng

CALL FOR PAPERS

April 15, 2011

The Chinese state is increasingly more engaged on a regional and global stage, as evident from the recent flare-ups in the South China Sea, the relative ability of the Chinese state to manage these challenges now versus before, the dispute, uncertainties on the Korean peninsula, and frictions with Japan over territorial and bank debts, fissiparous tendencies in Taiwan and Xizang (Tibet), a shaky global economy, include corruption, environmental degradation, unemployment, economic inequality, rising internal and external domestic political, economic, and social problems, which today

We invite papers that not only look not at the “narrow” dimensions of the aforementioned topics, but reflect, among other things, on how they are different from the stresses of 1911, inclusion in Japan. While we do not wish to limit your research, we are particularly interested in receiving proposals that investigate in detail the dynamics and strategies that the Chinese state uses to manage the following: the relative ability of the Chinese state to manage these challenges now versus before, the dispute, uncertainties on the Korean peninsula, and frictions with Japan over territorial and bank debts, fissiparous tendencies in Taiwan and Xizang (Tibet), a shaky global economy, include corruption, environmental degradation, unemployment, economic inequality, rising internal and external domestic political, economic, and social problems, which today

Panelists: You may submit a proposal if you have not already done so (please see the call for papers

All proposals should include the following:

1) panelist names
2) panelist affiliations
3) contact information for the primary author (mailing address, email, phone number, and fax number); 4) an abstract of 150-250 words; and 5), if you are a doctoral candidate, the anticipated date of dissertation completion and please also provide the name of your dissertation supervisor.

If you have not already submitted a proposal, please do so by April 15, 2011.

The Upcoming 2011 APSA-ACPS Related Group Panel

The Upcoming 2011 APSA-ACPS Related Group Panel

April 24, 2011

The Chinese state is increasingly more engaged on a regional and global stage, as evident from the recent flare-ups in the South China Sea, the relative ability of the Chinese state to manage these challenges now versus before, the dispute, uncertainties on the Korean peninsula, and frictions with Japan over territorial and bank debts, fissiparous tendencies in Taiwan and Xizang (Tibet), a shaky global economy, include corruption, environmental degradation, unemployment, economic inequality, rising internal and external domestic political, economic, and social problems, which today

We invite papers that not only look not at the “narrow” dimensions of the aforementioned topics, but reflect, among other things, on how they are different from the stresses of 1911, inclusion in Japan. While we do not wish to limit your research, we are particularly interested in receiving proposals that investigate in detail the dynamics and strategies that the Chinese state uses to manage the following: the relative ability of the Chinese state to manage these challenges now versus before, the dispute, uncertainties on the Korean peninsula, and frictions with Japan over territorial and bank debts, fissiparous tendencies in Taiwan and Xizang (Tibet), a shaky global economy, include corruption, environmental degradation, unemployment, economic inequality, rising internal and external domestic political, economic, and social problems, which today

Panelists: You may submit a proposal if you have not already done so (please see the call for papers

All proposals should include the following:

1) panelist names
2) panelist affiliations
3) contact information for the primary author (mailing address, email, phone number, and fax number); 4) an abstract of 150-250 words; and 5), if you are a doctoral candidate, the anticipated date of dissertation completion and please also provide the name of your dissertation supervisor.

If you have not already submitted a proposal, please do so by April 15, 2011.

The Upcoming 2011 APSA-ACPS Related Group Panel

April 24, 2011

The Chinese state is increasingly more engaged on a regional and global stage, as evident from the recent flare-ups in the South China Sea, the relative ability of the Chinese state to manage these challenges now versus before, the dispute, uncertainties on the Korean peninsula, and frictions with Japan over territorial and bank debts, fissiparous tendencies in Taiwan and Xizang (Tibet), a shaky global economy, include corruption, environmental degradation, unemployment, economic inequality, rising internal and external domestic political, economic, and social problems, which today

We invite papers that not only look not at the “narrow” dimensions of the aforementioned topics, but reflect, among other things, on how they are different from the stresses of 1911, inclusion in Japan. While we do not wish to limit your research, we are particularly interested in receiving proposals that investigate in detail the dynamics and strategies that the Chinese state uses to manage the following: the relative ability of the Chinese state to manage these challenges now versus before, the dispute, uncertainties on the Korean peninsula, and frictions with Japan over territorial and bank debts, fissiparous tendencies in Taiwan and Xizang (Tibet), a shaky global economy, include corruption, environmental degradation, unemployment, economic inequality, rising internal and external domestic political, economic, and social problems, which today

Panelists: You may submit a proposal if you have not already done so (please see the call for papers

All proposals should include the following:

1) panelist names
2) panelist affiliations
3) contact information for the primary author (mailing address, email, phone number, and fax number); 4) an abstract of 150-250 words; and 5), if you are a doctoral candidate, the anticipated date of dissertation completion and please also provide the name of your dissertation supervisor.

If you have not already submitted a proposal, please do so by April 15, 2011.

The Upcoming 2011 APSA-ACPS Related Group Panel

April 24, 2011

The Chinese state is increasingly more engaged on a regional and global stage, as evident from the recent flare-ups in the South China Sea, the relative ability of the Chinese state to manage these challenges now versus before, the dispute, uncertainties on the Korean peninsula, and frictions with Japan over territorial and bank debts, fissiparous tendencies in Taiwan and Xizang (Tibet), a shaky global economy, include corruption, environmental degradation, unemployment, economic inequality, rising internal and external domestic political, economic, and social problems, which today

We invite papers that not only look not at the “narrow” dimensions of the aforementioned topics, but reflect, among other things, on how they are different from the stresses of 1911, inclusion in Japan. While we do not wish to limit your research, we are particularly interested in receiving proposals that investigate in detail the dynamics and strategies that the Chinese state uses to manage the following: the relative ability of the Chinese state to manage these challenges now versus before, the dispute, uncertainties on the Korean peninsula, and frictions with Japan over territorial and bank debts, fissiparous tendencies in Taiwan and Xizang (Tibet), a shaky global economy, include corruption, environmental degradation, unemployment, economic inequality, rising internal and external domestic political, economic, and social problems, which today

Panelists: You may submit a proposal if you have not already done so (please see the call for papers

All proposals should include the following:

1) panelist names
2) panelist affiliations
3) contact information for the primary author (mailing address, email, phone number, and fax number); 4) an abstract of 150-250 words; and 5), if you are a doctoral candidate, the anticipated date of dissertation completion and please also provide the name of your dissertation supervisor.

If you have not already submitted a proposal, please do so by April 15, 2011.